PREFACE.

SINCE the examples now offered you were first gathered (1832), the years of two generations, as usually reckoned, have rolled by. It is fitting for us to furnish some account of the old collector's views and progress as gleaned from himself.

In acquiring any piece, his aim was to learn as much about it and the history of its time and occasion as his means of reference would admit, gaining thereby with the intellectual pleasure, that of possession and examination in studious leisure.

Among the Greek coins may be found some rare and valuable pieces, such as the gold pentadrachm with portrait of Ptolemaios I, distater of Ptolemaios II Philadelphos and Arsinoë II and Ptolemaios I and Berenice octadrachms of Arsinoë II and Ptolemaios III., etc.

A great interest relating to the Reformation of the 16th Century led to the effort of making as complete a collection of the coins and medals relating thereto as they presented themselves—few in number, in any one catalogue. A very large proportion were bought in Europe.

The series begins with the medals of John Huss (Reformer before the Reformation) who was burnt at the stake at Costnitz (Constance), A.D. 1515. It is stated that these were the first medals, properly so called, made in Europe, i. e., the setting forth in metallic form of remarkable events—without the portrait or imprint of potentate or prince—not money in any sense, having no royal or state device as in coins and antique medallions. It is said that Huss (in Bohemian dialect “goose”) exclaimed to his tormentors when bound to the post: “You are now roasting a goose, but ere long a swan will arise to whose song you will listen.” Thus a swan came to be used as an emblem of Luther.

The original type of the Huss memorial has been repeated with but little variation, and belongs to the age that followed the nailing up of the theses at Wittenburg and the presentation to Charles V. at Augsburg of the Confession of the Reformed Faith—The Augsburg Confession. In this and in the succeeding century the Princes and Rulers of the many small States of Germany struck their current Coins of all denominations, both gold and silver, in commemoration of the events and feelings of the time.

This Show-money, as it was termed, did duty for trade and business, being highly prized, also, as keepsakes or amulets, to which use is owing much of the preservation of what now remains, as well as accounts for the rubbing in handling.

After the Unification of Germany, all coinage not that of the Imperial Mint was prohibited, and pieces and tokens formerly rare, acquire increasing rarity as the Cabinets of the Curious can alone be looked to for filling out the approach to exhaustive gathering of the series. After the Imperial prohibition many pieces were struck by communities, churches and individuals on the celebration and recurrence of anniversaries connected with these remarkable events.

To follow up this study with light and intelligence the authorities below are given to which belong the references of the catalogue. It must be premised that each Century is termed a Jubilee.

For the first Jubilee or from Anna Domini 1600 to 1700.

a Vita D. Martini Lutheri (in Latin).

M. Christian Juncker Frankfort and Leipsic 1699. 12mo.

b Ehren Gedachtniss.

D. Martini Lutheri.

M. Christian Juncker. Dresden.

Frankfort and Leipsic 1706 small Svo.

Same as foregoing, but much enlarged and in German.

For the second Jubilee :

Ern. Sal. Cypriani (In German).

Hilaria Evangelica Gotha 1719. folio.

A fine specimen of book-making, many engravings and histories relating to the Second Jubilee ; in the last section of this book are 12 fine folio copper plates giving a great number of Second Jubilee pieces ; also descriptive notes.

For part of the First Jubilee, most of the Second and part of the Third there is—Andenken in Munzen by Heinrich Gottlieb Kreussler. Leipsic, 1818—notes and descriptions.

All the coins and medals we guarantee genuine, unless otherwise described.

The closing number to the descriptions of the medals refers to the size. See scale.

MEDALS OF LUTHER.

The study of Numismatics is the hand-maid of History, leading to much that is unrecorded in printed books and manuscripts, and furnishing traits of nations, men and times to be found out by intelligent search, which make the readers of coins and medals active seekers in historical domain.

Among the interesting pages which to a greater or less extent have been the early study of all, there are no accounts of more engaging value, either in a sacred or secular point of view, than those giving the rise and progress of that great religious movement begun in the fifteenth century (1415) heading up in the sixteenth (1517), as the Great Reformation, and subsequently spreading over the world. Opposition to the errors of the then prevailing church, the shutting of the doors of knowledge, the sale of permissions of ecclesiastical pardon for future sins (indulgences), brought John Huss to the stake, and fulminated the bull of excommunication against Martin Luther, which, had not his coadjutors been so numerous and so powerful, would have led to a like result in his case.

The coins, medals and money, of which the description follows this brief note, give the views, temper and excitement of those who were interested in this upturning. Between the lines may be read the earnest zeal, the lofty aspirations of the early reformers, which give the tone and ring of their spirit. Numerous events of note were indelibly stamped on metal, such as the date of Luther's birth, the nailing up of the theses at Wittenberg, the great scenes of his life and labors, his persecutions and his translation of the Bible; his sturdy opposition to wrong; his marriage, ministry, profound learning, fervent piety; the close of his career and incidents in after ages—these are set forth in many-sided views, realistic and emblematic. Nor are wanting the portraits of the men of the time down to that of the Pope's Inquisitor, John Tetzel, who sold indulgences to furnish means for the building of St. Peter's at Rome. See No. 652.—(NOTE BY THE COLLECTOR.)
